

Bob's decorative wallpapers

1. Introduction

- Recently the bob's decorative wallpaper business has been growing up in his local city, so he wants to make a website where he will show his contact data to make him recognised over the country, providing his services and also showing images of wallpapers that he usually sells and install.

2. Expected List of Features

- A brief list of features that you expect your website to support.
 - there are two types of users: administrator and client, both of them are allowed to do login in the page.
 - every user could comment a product if he is already logged.
 - an client user is allowed to request a product to a seller (initially only the administrator users would be the sellers).
 - an administrator user is allowed to publish a product and modify it (image, price, availability...) or delete it from the database.
 - an user could see all the published products and their attributes in the products section even if he is not logged on the page.
- Brief justifications for including these features.
 - all of those features are the basics features on a selling website, but all the payments are dealt directly with the seller with a external way of communication.

3. Market Survey

- I have found 4 pages that are similar to my idea, in those i found 2 curious examples
 - architecturaldigest.com: 33 inspiring rooms with wallpaper
 - elledecor.com
- this websites are very similar, a products gallery is shown in the principal view, but what i want is not only a gallery, i will show the decorative wallpapers, how to get it and more information of these products.
